Macroeconomic Overview

Large cap growth stocks advanced during the quarter, with health care and financials being the best performing sectors in the Russell 1000® Growth index. Energy and telecommunication services posted sharp declines and were the greatest underperformers in the index. Against this backdrop, Morgan Stanley continued to focus on bottom-up stock selection and the long-term outlook for companies owned in the portfolio; accordingly, there was little turnover in the portfolio, as the ongoing work reaffirms Morgan Stanley's assessment of quality and competitive advantage in the names owned.

Fund Overview

Transamerica Capital Growth Fund outperformed the Russell 1000® Growth Index this quarter largely due to favorable stock selection. Stock selection in information technology, consumer discretionary, and health care drove outperformance. NVIDIA Corp. (3.21% of holdings as of 6/30/17), Intuitive Surgical, Inc., Workday (4.62% of holdings as of 6/30/17), Tesla, Inc. (1.48% of holdings as of 6/30/17), and athenahealth, Inc. (3.71% as of 6/30/17) were the top contributors to performance. A lack of exposure to consumer staples and telecommunication services, along with stock selection in financials, also contributed to a lesser extent. Conversely, a lack of exposure to industrials was a small detractor. The largest detractors during the quarter were DexCom, Inc. (1.47% of holdings as of 6/30/17), Starbucks Corp., Splunk, Inc. (0.00% of holdings as of 6/30/17), and Snap, Inc. Class A (0.33% of holdings as of 6/30/17). The position in Splunk, Inc. was eliminated in June to fund other investments with a superior risk/reward profile.

Outlook

Morgan Stanley believes having a market outlook can be an anchor. Their focus is on assessing company prospects over three to five years, and owning a portfolio of high quality companies with diverse business drivers not tied to a particular market environment.

Returns on growth stocks may not move in tandem with return on other categories of stocks or the market as a whole. Growth stocks may be particularly susceptible to larger price swings or to adverse developments. Growth stocks as a group may be out of favor and underperform the overall equity market for a long period of time, for example, while the market favors "value" stocks.
