Macroeconomic Overview

The third quarter of 2017 exhibited strong equity returns across all major regions. Both global equities and U.S. equities performance (as represented by the MSCI All Country World Index) appreciated 4.5% in the quarter. Emerging market equities, mirroring the region's strong performance year-to-date, rose 7.7% in the quarter. Reflecting the notion that the U.S. market remains in a prolonged era of growth and other parts of the world are now catching up, global (MSCI ACWI Index), U.S. (S&P 500®), and emerging market (MSCI Emerging Markets Equity Index) equities have appreciated in each month year-to-date. Global bond markets extended a performance rebound that began in the first quarter, on the heels of historic losses in the fourth quarter of 2016. Global fixed income (as represented by the Bloomberg Barclays Global Aggregate Total Return Index) appreciated 1.8% in the quarter and U.S. bonds (as represented by the Bloomberg Barclays U.S. Aggregate Total Return Index) added 0.8%.

Fund Overview

Transamerica ClearTrack 2025 outperformed its benchmark, the Dow Jones Target 2025 Index, during the quarter, net of fees. Outperformance was a result of the fund's asset allocation effects, as the fund's strategic asset allocation is overweight equities relative to its benchmark. The primary benefactors were the impact from international equity and U.S. fixed income. The fund was overweight international equities, which had strong returns in the quarter. The fund's underweight to U.S. fixed income, which underperformed equities, added relative value. In absolute terms, all the fund's underlying holdings had positive returns over the quarter. Equities outperformed fixed income holdings, where emerging markets equity, U.S. small cap equity, and international equity were the top performers. Within fixed income, U.S. high yield was the top performer.

Outlook

At the end of September, QS continued to favor U.S. equities versus investment grade bonds. However, the level of conviction in U.S. equities decreased versus one month prior, largely on QS's Leading Economic Indicator Index (LEI) pulling into negative territory. The LEI was driven down largely due to recent spikes in weekly U.S. initial jobless claims. Over the four prints in September, initial jobless claims averaged 278,000 – by far the highest monthly average this year. September's increase in jobless claims was largely attributed to the impact of Hurricanes Harvey and Irma, which caused widespread damage in Texas and Florida. In other asset classes, QS favored U.S. high yield versus investment grade bonds. This preference was driven by spreads between these asset classes tightening, which generally favors high yield bonds. Furthermore, the persistently low equity volatility environment is generally supportive of high yield bond appreciation.

The ClearTrack® target date options invest in exchange-traded funds (ETFs) which may represent a variety of broad asset classes including equity, fixed income, inflation-hedging, and short-term defensive instruments and may be subject to all of the risks of these asset classes. ETFs generally present the same risks as an investment in a conventional fund that has the same investment objectives, strategies, and policies. The market price of an ETF's shares may be above or below the shares' net asset value; and an active trading market for an ETF's shares may not develop or be maintained. The allocations become more conservative over time: The fund's asset mix allocated to equities will decrease while the percentage allocated to fixed income will increase as the target date approaches. The higher the allocation is to equities, the greater the risk. The principal value of the investment option is never guaranteed, including at and after the target date. Diversification does not assure a profit or protect against market loss.
