Macroeconomic Overview

After a very busy Q2 2018, the loan market saw volume decline in Q3 2018, particularly in July and August. Activity did come back in September, especially in terms of net new money to the loan market, highlighted by several large issuers. The secondary market had a strong quarter as the over-subscribed primary deals and correspondingly difficult allocations meant managers were forced to buy loans in the secondary market to spend down their cash, driving up prices. This activity helped the Credit Suisse Leveraged Loan index return 1.93% during the quarter, with the rally led by discounted loans and CCC-rated loans (up 3.52%). The recent string of U.S. Federal Reserve hikes has lifted 3-month LIBOR to 2.40% as of quarter-end. Retail flows were positive during the quarter and collateralized loan obligation (CLO) pricings have now reached $101 billion through the end of the quarter, the fastest annualized pace ever in the post-Great Financial Crisis era. Overall, defaults are expected to remain at or below long-term averages for the next few years. The default rate was 1.59% at the end of Q2 2018 as measured by issuer count.

Fund Overview

By sector, the top positive contributors to excess returns this quarter included holdings in media/telecom, healthcare and transportation, primarily due to strong security selection. The largest detractors included exposures to retail, energy and forest products/containers. Transamerica Floating Rate's B-rated holdings detracted the most from relative performance this quarter while holdings within BBs contributed favorably. The underweight to CCCs and below also detracted as lower-quality outperformed this quarter.

Outlook

The last quarter of 2018 is expected to be a coupon-clipping type return environment given already high loan prices and the lack of a known catalyst to cause major market disruption. AUIM continues to expect full-year returns to reach the 4.5% - 5.5% range, with the strong 3rd quarter likely leading to returns in the upper end of that range. New issuance is not expected to be as robust in the last quarter of 2018, but volumes should still be reasonable given the healthy economy, merger & acquisition activity (including leveraged buyouts) and issuers looking to re-price now that the market has recovered from June lows. CLO issuance is expected to continue at a moderate pace as a broadening investor base, especially from Asia, and rising rates are supporting the CLO market's growth. Underwriting quality will likely continue to worsen as this bullish leg of the business cycle extends. The bank loan market is seeing higher leverage at the secured level, fewer covenants and more EBITDA add-backs. With the economy continuing its modest expansion, there hasn't been much reckoning yet as cash flow coverage is strong, there is ample covenant headroom, and there are few looming maturities in the market.

30-Day SEC Yield

Class A – Subsidized	4.11%
Class A – Unsubsidized	4.06%

The 30-Day SEC Yield is computed in accordance with a standardized method prescribed by rules of the SEC. The 30-Day SEC Yield is computed by dividing the fund's investment income per share earned during a particular 30-day base period by the maximum offering price per share on the last day of the base period, and then annualizing the result. The 30-Day SEC Yield is calculated at each month end and updated within the first ten business days of the following month. Be advised that the 30-Day SEC Yield calculation does not account for return of capital. Please refer to the most recent Annual Report for additional information regarding the composition of distributions. The subsidized 30-Day SEC Yield reflects the reimbursements or waivers of certain expenses. Had fees not been waived and/or expenses reimbursed, the yield would be lower. The unsubsidized 30-Day SEC Yield does not reflect reimbursements or waivers of expense fees.
